

"The Kid" comes home with three awards

by Nancy Connors

"The Kid" came home from the snowy hills of Pennsylvania with three awards: Best in the Region in Set Design, Technical Direction and Costume Design. Although the final grand prize—selection for the National Festival in the spring, 1983 at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts—will not be decided until the early March, the cast, crew and staff of "The Kid" have accomplished a great deal.

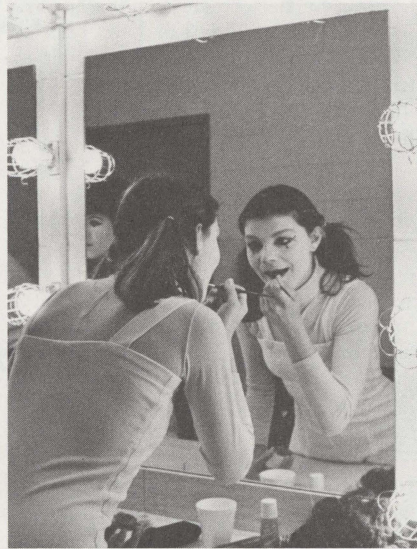

Gallaudet College's production of "The Kid" was one of five performances at the American College Theatre Festival XV Region II (ACTF) competition in Wilkes-Barre, PA held Jan. 12-16. "The Kid" originally opened at Gallaudet Oct. 29, 1982. Bill Moses, chairman of the Theatre Arts Department, is the author-director of this "musical in sign and mime." Last Monday he said that his mind was "still reeling from the critique." Working with time limits and other festival rules, the cast and crew had been able to set up, perform and strike the set within the festival guidelines. The audience had laughed and applauded. And the critics had said that the play and critique discussion illustrated the "positive possibilities of theatre."

James Leverett, literary manager of the Theatre Communications Group in New York and Julius Novick, theatre critic for the Village Voice, conducted the Saturday (morning-after) discussion of the Gallaudet presentation. The critique session was open to members of the cast, crew and all festival attendees. Jay Siegfried, chair of the ACTF, Region II, opened the morning by explaining that the critique was a time for all involved to "rethink the production and also theatre in general." Leverett stated that it was an opportunity for everyone to ask questions and have an open discussion. "I'm really a student here, I'm all questions," he added later.

Leverett asked Bill Moses to explain his purpose for presenting the play in mime. Moses responded that he wanted to see "how far I could stretch mime as a medium while incorporating the beautiful parts of sign language. I wanted the production to successfully communicate to both deaf and hearing audiences."

Pre-College Programs awarded grant for pregnancy prevention program

Pre-College Programs has been awarded a grant entitled "A Pregnancy Prevention Program for Deaf Adolescents, Hearing and Deaf Parents of Deaf Children and Deaf Parents of Hearing Children." The funds were granted by the Office of Adolescent Pregnancy Prevention, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

David Updegraff, administrator, Grants and Federal Contracts for the Pre-College Programs Division, is the project director. Della Fitz-Gerald has joined the project staff full time as Sex Education specialist, and Max Fitz-Gerald, Sex Education specialist at MSSD, is part time staff. Various consultants in deafness, sexuality, curriculum and evaluation will be involved as part time staff, as well.

This unique project has been designed as a prevention program for deaf youth and their parents. Many parents of deaf children and deaf parents of hearing children have expressed a desire for assistance in communicating with their children about sexuality. Various polls and surveys indicate that 80% to 90% of parents agree that sex education instruction is a parent's responsibility. However, additional research also shows that many parents feel inadequate and desire additional structured training.

Often communication barriers and lowered reading levels reduce input from auditory and written sources. The deaf youth is more likely to obtain sexual information from observation and

Grabill resigns from Board

Dr. Wilson Henry Grabill, who had served on the Gallaudet College Board of Trustees for more than 18 years, recently resigned from the Board for health reasons.

Dr. Grabill joined the Board in 1964 as its second alumni representative, replacing Boyce Williams. At the time of his resignation, he was secretary of the Board, served as a representative on the Presidential Search Committee and was on the Graduate Scholarship Fund Committee. He has also been chairman of the Board's Committee on Honors and a member of the Executive Committee, as well as serving on the Laurent Clerc Cultural Committee.

"Dr. Wilson Grabill has expressed his loyalty and commitment to Gallaudet College through years of dedicated service to the Board of Trustees," said President Edward C. Merrill, Jr. "As the secretary to the Board, he was keenly aware of all policies and activities of the College and always wanted the best possible educational program for the students here. It is because of his many selfless contributions that we have such affection for him."

Dr. Grabill attended the Wisconsin School for the Deaf and then came to Gallaudet, graduating in 1934. He received his MA in Statistics from American University in 1942. He later received an honorary Doctor of Letters degree from Gallaudet at the 99th Commencement.

A long-time employee of the Bureau of the Census, Dr. Grabill retired from government service in August, 1975 after 41 years of service. Since 1962, he served as chief of the Fertility Statistics Branch, Population Division, Bureau of Census, U.S. Department of Commerce. The Department of Commerce honored him in 1975 with its highest award, the gold medal for meritorious service; he had previously received the silver medal in 1962.

Dr. Grabill has co-authored three books, written dozens of articles and scientific papers and prepared numerous census reports on the fertility of American women.

He has served on the Board of Directors of the Population Association of America and the U.S. National Committee of the International Union for the Scientific Study of Population. In addition, he has been the treasurer of the National Health-Care Foundation for the Deaf, junior warden of St. Barnabas Mission to the Deaf and a member of the Alexandria-Potomac Lions Club.

Doin Hicks talks with Patria Forsythe, staff member of the Senate Subcommittee on the Handicapped, at a mini-conference held at KDES Jan. 14-15. The conference, "Working Together on Legislative Goals Regarding Deafness," brought together leaders from major organizations of and for the deaf. Forsythe was the keynote speaker at the conference, co-hosted by the Council on Education of the Deaf and the National Association of the Deaf. Hicks attended as a representative of CED and CAID.

Sign Communication reorganizes this year

Effective this semester, the Department of Sign Communication has been reorganized into two department units—Sign Communication and Interpreter-Transliterator Instruction.

The Sign Communication Department, chaired by Lottie Riekehof, includes Ron Brasel, Lynn Jacobowitz, Mike Kemp, Paul Menkis and Will Madsen. The Interpreter-Transliterator Instruction Department, chaired by Paula Ottinger, includes Betty Colonomos, Joyce Groode and Mary Anne Royster.

Both units will continue to be housed in the Mary Thornberry Building until the renovation of Kendall Hall is completed this summer.

Memorial service held Jan. 24

A memorial service was scheduled to be held for Trudy Simola on Monday, Jan. 24 at 3 p.m. in the Elstad Auditorium. Simola, who was a preparatory student from Canada, died on Dec. 4, 1982 from injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

Former teacher dies

Ben Provance, a faculty member at Kendall School for more than 15 years, died on Jan. 11 after an extended illness.

A brief memorial service was held for Mr. Provance in the KDES Auditorium on Jan. 17.

CAID grants

The Mini Grant Committee from CAID (Convention of American Instructors of the Deaf) has announced Feb. 28 as the deadline for two types of grants.

Teacher grants will be awarded to an individual classroom teacher of the hearing impaired who is a CAID member, to assist in the research, planning, development or dissemination of a classroom level project.

Unit grants will be awarded to a group of teachers, one of whom is a CAID member, in a single school/program, for the planning, development or dissemination of a project at a given grade level or for a specific subject area.

The submissions will be reviewed in March and the mini grants awards announced in April. Mini grants are not to exceed $2,000 per year in awards of $200 to $500 each.

For further information contact the Office of Sponsored Research or to receive a copy of the Mini Grant application form and suggested guidelines, write to Dr. Charlene Bishop, CAID Mini Grant Committee, 2525 Wyandotte St., Baton Rouge, LA 70805.

personal experience. Although there are no studies on the incidence of adolescent pregnancy among deaf adolescents, professional observation indicates that absence of basic sexual facts, sexual problems, incidence of sexually transmitted disease and unwanted pregnancies are present among deaf youth.

In an attempt to answer these needs, the objectives of this grant include the development and implementation of a parent sex education curriculum, the development of a model prevention services program for Pre-College students and the implementation of a national training program to train trainers of parents.

The development of the parent sex education curriculum will reflect the surveyed needs of parents in Pre-College Programs' primary service area—Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia. An advisory panel consisting of professionals in deafness, experts in human sexuality and parents will facilitate in the parent curriculum development.

The Model Prevention Services Program development will provide continuity of curriculum, health and counseling services for Pre-College students. Both parents and students will be involved in and informed of curriculum pregnancy testing, maternity counseling, nutrition information, screening and treatment of venereal disease, personal and group counseling services and interpreting assistance.

Dissemination of this programming will entail training trainers from residential, day and public mainstreamed programs. Following training, project staff will assist the sites in the implementation of their programs.

This is an exciting and comprehensive project that will impact on the many parents and students of the Pre-College Programs and HS Primary Service Area. Through comprehensive preventative programming, professionals can facilitate parents as primary sex educators as well as enhance deaf youths' understanding of themselves as responsible sexual beings.

The critics then asked the musicians and vocalists about their experiences as the auditory part of the production. Bari Biern, the female vocalist, said, "I feel a great responsibility because we have to extend their characters into the vocal area." She said the vocalists are "not only performer but also audience" to the deaf performers' actions and feelings. Moses added that the built up round platform of the scenery "helped to reinforce the vibration impulse" of the music for the actors. The set helped the group to "feel" together.

The discussion then turned to the use of lights as "conductor." A box at the rear wall of the theatre contained a red and a blue light. These flashed on and off as cues for the beginning of songs and movements geared to the music. Novic was surprised at this elaborate system. "It never occurred to me that cueing was a special problem," he said. "That shows you how successful it was."

Vicki Havens asked the critics to comment on the costumes; since she was wardrobe supervisor she wanted to know what they thought of the white jumpsuits and colored patches. Novick said that "the costumes seem to be part of the tradition of modern musicals—patches and jeans." But in this production the "patches were used as a central metaphor of the play. I was fascinated to see how they were used to show the connections and separations between the characters." Colored patches were exchanged when people became friends or lovers and taken when conquered or separated. Personal relationships and "negotiations" were made visible through the patches.

Novick and Leverett asked the actors about their development of the character they portrayed. Charles Katz, who played "The Kid," said that he did not feel that his deafness made a difference in the methods he used to develop his character. Marsha Goeken, who played Fuschia, said that she noticed that her character developed in one way when in the early stages of planning her movements and that it took on added dimensions when the music, which she "senses," was added later. Other actors commented on their own unique experiences developing characters, working with the music and feeling at one with the ensemble.

For the cast and crew of "The Kid," it will be a long long time from now to the decision of the National judges at the beginning of March . . . and if selected for production at the Kennedy Center, you can bet that the rehearsal days will grow short between March and April.

During the critique after the performance, actors, writers and crew had an opportunity to discuss methods used in "The Kid."

College Council staff elections set

Election for staff representatives who will serve on the College Council for the next two years will be held this Thursday, Jan. 27.

The polls will be open between 9 a.m.-1 p.m. and 2:30-4:30 p.m. for staff members to vote for Council representatives from their respective divisions. Persons from MSSD and KDES can vote in the lobbies of MSSD and KDES; all other persons can vote in Ely Center near the snack bar.

The three largest divisions—Academic Affairs, Business Affairs and Pre-College—will each elect two representatives, one exempt staff employee and one non-exempt. In the smaller areas—Public Services, Research and Institutional Advancement/President's Office—one representative will be elected at-large. The first runner-up from each area will serve as an alternate.

The College Council is an elected group of staff and faculty representatives who advise the president on campus issues and meet once a month. New faculty representatives will be chosen later.

The nominees from each division are:

Academic Affairs

Space management project underway

The Space Management System (SMS) Project, which was initiated a year ago by the Planning Office, will compile and analyze data on all rooms and buildings on Kendall Green.

SMS is gathering data to see how rooms are used, as offices, classrooms, etc., the useable square feet in each area, who the occupants are and within which division. This project will assist the Planning Office in determining if all space is being utilized efficiently and what space is available if departments on campus need to expand.

To assist with this enormous task, the Planning Office has hired Measured

The Audiology Department provided free hearing screenings for students and faculty at Holy Name School last week as a service to the surrounding community.

New guide for deaf persons planned

It's not too soon to begin planning for Deaf Heritage Week, Dec. 4-10 1983. This will be the 10th anniversary of this celebration of deaf people and their culture to be organized through the public library systems of the Washington Metropolitan area.

Alice Hagemeyer, along with volunteers and the Friends of Libraries for Deaf Action, will be working all year on a new publication—an updated revised and expanded version of A Deaf Person's Quick Guide to Washington.

Anyone interested in sponsoring a program for Deaf Heritage Week 1983 at their local library should contact their library for the use of a free meeting room and free publicity.

Many members of the Gallaudet faculty and staff participated in this year's celebration this past December. Debbie Sonnenstrahl delivered a presentation on the creativity and character of Cadwallader Washburn at the Martin Luther King Memorial Library in Washington, D.C. Francis Higgins and Hal Domich chose John Carlin, an artist, writer and poet, as the focus for their presentation on Deaf Heritage at the Greenbelt Public Library in Maryland.

For further information on planning a celebration of deaf heritage at your local library contact Alice Hagemeyer, MLK Library, Washington, D.C.

Send thanks for captioned program

by Mike Kaika

From Sunday, Jan. 9 through Thursday, Jan. 13 I and probably thousands of other deaf viewers around the nation watched Nicholas Nickleby, which was closed captioned. The Mobil Oil Corporation produced the show and paid for the captioning.

Deaf viewers are encouraged to write a note of thanks to Mobil for captioning this program. Letters should be sent to Mr. Paul Gerken, Supervisor TV Production, Mobil Oil Corporation, Public Relations Department, 150 East 42nd St., New York, NY 10017. It would be a good idea to send a carbon copy of your letter to the National Captioning Institute.

Coming up on Feb. 6 and running for a week will be another program entitled "Winds of War," which will be aired on ABC. This program will also be captioned by various sponsors and the National Captioning Institute. Check your TV listing for time and channel.

IBM reps to visit campus

Once again the Counseling and Placement Center, a unit of Student Affairs, will be sponsoring its annual IBM Career Opportunity Evening Feb. 1 from 7-8:30 p.m. in the Ely Auditorium.

Phil Bravin, a member of the Gallaudet College Board of Trustees and an IBM employee, will be returning to give another presentation. Representatives from two IBM locations in Manassas, VA and Charlotte, NC will give students information regarding career opportunities at those locations.

This year's program will also feature former Gallaudet students who are now employed at IBM. They will be available to discuss topics such as accommodation of deaf employees and advancement opportunities, etc.

The event is open to all faculty, staff and students. Faculty and staff are asked to encourage students to attend this activity.
